KIDTOWN

4/19

TRUE but STRANGE

A previously unknown species of treehopper has been named after pop star Lady Gaga by the University of Illinois student who recently made the discovery. Now named Kaikaia gaga, the bug has extravagant horns and sings to other treehoppers by vibrating plant stems.

It's not the first time an insect has been named after Lady Gaga. In 2012, researchers at the University of Thailand named a species of wasp Aleiodes gaga in her honor!
